The Phenix boys and their ladies are each deserving of a great big red apple.

—The editor is under lasting obligations to Mrs. M. E. Durand, the city florist, for a beautifully arranged bouquet of Chrysanthemums, in a variety of colors. Perhaps if we were not thus reminded occasionally we might forget that right here in our midst is one of the grandest and most complete green houses to be found in all this western country. Mrs. Durand's houses are one mass of bloom, and if any of our citizens or outside neighbors wish cut flowers, here they can be supplied in almost endless variety.

—Rev. Dr. McGerald, of Buffalo, N. Y., editor of the Christian Advocate of that city, lectured to a large audience at the M. E. church Thursday night, on the subject of "Roman Catholicism." Dr. McGerald is a very pleasant and able speaker and held the closest attention of the audience for about two hours. His remarks were just, and although only extracts from his lecture on this subject were very interesting and instructive to Protestants, and, we believe, not in the least offensive to Catholics. We feel very thankful for this visit from Dr. McGerald, and are promised another visit at the spring term of the Dodge School of Theology.

—At the last meeting of the Knights of Pythias it was unanimously agreed to give a complimentary musical entertainment on next Tuesday evening. The K. P.'s are proud of their Castle Hall and desire the citizens to learn how handsomely and comfortably they are situated. They expect to give a good entertainment—although the local talent is restricted to the Knights of Pythias order—as it will receive valuable assistance from talent now visiting this place. The seating capacity of the Castle Hall being somewhat limited, invitations will necessarily be issued. Knowing the musical ability of the members of this order we may safely anticipate a very enjoyable evening for our citizens, as well as a cordial, hearty and chivalric welcome to the guests of the order.

—Elsewhere in this paper will be found a synopsis of the traffic alliance between the Rock Island and Santa Fe companies, one of the most important railroad combines made for a long time, and one that is of untold benefit to Dodge City and Ford county. In the new route Dodge City is made the dividing point for all east and west bound traffic. As the agreement provides that all traffic from Chicago west-bound is turned over by the Rock Island at Dodge City to the Santa Fe, and all east-bound traffic from the west is turned over at Dodge City by the Santa Fe to the Rock Island, it means that the latter company will be obliged to run their track across the river to the north side at this place, and this involves the bridging of the Arkansas river, more yard room, more depot and freight house facilities, as the two companies will be practically one. All this will give employment, and will certainly establish Dodge City as one of the more important railroad points. As the O., D. C. & S. railway is in fair shape of being built, there is a future for Dodge City that is indeed flattering.

At the High School.

"How to Teach Reading," was discussed at the teachers' meeting last Saturday morning. The following are a few of the points made:

First. Reading is the most important branch of school study, for the reason that the ability to acquire a knowledge of any other branch is largely dependent upon one's skill in reading.

Second. The teacher should strive to gain the following objects: (a), To so train the pupil that he may gather the full sense from the printed page; (b), to develop in the pupil's mind a love for reading; (c), to drill and practice to enable the learner to read entertainingly to others; (d), to improve his manner and develop his power of expression; (e), to strengthen his voice and improve his health.

Third. To accomplish the above the following conditions are deemed necessary: (a), The pupil must be interested; (b), he is interested only in that which he understands, hence the teacher must proceed from the known to the unknown by easy steps; (c), not only must he be able to understand what he reads, but there must be variety in the thought presented just as there is variety in that which nature presents to his mind. As a result of these conditions there should be a sufficient quantity of reading matter accessible to the pupil. It should be of the best quality and treat of a variety of subjects, and it should be presented to his mind in a skillful manner. In this way can a love for reading be formed, which will not only be a valuable source of knowledge and happiness, but a safeguard against many temptations.

Fourth. The merits of the readers now in use were discussed, and the conclusion reached that while they are excellent in many respects, they, nor no other single series of readers, furnish sufficient reading matter to enable a child to become a good reader. One acquires skill in reading as in anything else by practice, consequently the more one reads and the wider his range of reading is the more skillful he will become.

A committee of the board of education appointed for the purpose, were present and took part in the discussion adding very much to the interest of the meeting. We do not know what their report will be, but we hope that they will conclude to add to our school library a number of volumes of supplementary reading matter.

The last words of John A. Martin to anyone outside of his immediate family were uttered to Secretary James Smith. They were: "I shall not die." These words will probably be inscribed upon his monument.—Atchison Patriot.

The lowest point in the state of Kansas is on the old Wyandotte levee, the altitude above sea level being 750 feet. At Baxter Springs in the southeast corner of the state, the altitude is 820 feet. It rises as you go north, until at Atchison the altitude is 898 feet. It climbs upward as you go west until at Fort Riley it is 1,200 feet; at Osborne 2,000; Wallace near the west line of the state, 3,318 and at the extreme northwest corner of the state 4,000.

THE GILMORE CONCERT.

How the Music was Received.—Notes and Personal.

The long looked-for Gilmore and his company of artists—the one and all-important topic for the past two weeks—made good his promise on Monday night, and not less than five hundred souls who assembled at McCarty's opera house were treated to one of the most magnificent musical affairs ever attempted in the west.

We confess our inability to do full justice in praising the glories and magnificence of Gilmore and his band of artists, especially since some of the best musical critics all over the world have written the strongest articles that possibly could be written. One fact, however, we feel we are competent to criticize, and that is the programme presented on Monday night. In the selection of this programme Mr. Gilmore, no doubt, preferred to please his audience rather than pose as something too high for the average person to understand, and accordingly played only music within the comprehension of all. "The charge of the Light Brigade," so realistic, and the grander scene from "Il Trovatore," enriched by the ringing of anvils, the booming of cannon, singing and playing by the full band, caused the most sublime effect and will long be remembered by those who had the good fortune to listen to it.

We do not feel competent to particularize further on the band, suffice it to say that the medals worn by the many soloists are true indications of their musical worth.

Mme. Blanche Stone-Barton, the accomplished prima donna soprano, simply took the house by storm, changing her selection from "Mignon" to that most charming piece "Una voce poco fa," by Rossini, at the conclusion of which she was greeted with so earnest and continued applause that to restore order she was compelled to make a second appearance, singing Franz Abt's "Cuckoo Song."

Miss Jenny Dickerson, contralto, was also warmly endorsed, and by request sang "Swanee River," which never fails to charm an audience.

By special request from one of our leading musicians Mr. Gilmore performed Gottschalk's "Last Hope," a very fine sacred selection.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the prevailing feeling was, "we have seen Gilmore and we are well pleased."
